An Apology

Last week the medium II was forced by deadline pressures and the cancellation of an ECSU council meeting, to sell the back page of medium II to another advertiser despite ECSU's contractual right to that page.

In recompense, the medium II has published the ECSU by-law revisions which will be voted on in an upcoming referendum and we hereby apologize for whatever inconvenience our actions might have caused the council.

ECSU Foster Child

A Slide and Tape Presentation concerning the ECSU Foster Child will soon be presented. Drop by ECSU for information regarding the date and time. Donations will be accepted. The theme is: Share your love because although charity may begin at home, love has no borders.

On April 2nd, 1984, applications will be accepted from Senior Students now living off-campus. Your name will be placed on a waiting list and consideration will be given to those who live furthest away. If the list becomes too long, selection may have to be done by lottery.

medium II publications

Medium II Publications will be introducing a new publication on March 28th, 1984.

The medium II revue will be published as a supplement to the last issue of medium II this year. The medium II itself will be enclosed.

The Editor-in-Chief, Garth Hardie, was "happy that this new publication could be offered to the students, at no extra cost to them and without any changes to the medium II's planned operating expenses."

The medium II revue will be a humour magazine focusing on humourous events at Erindale this year and on parodies of incidents of wider appeal.

The medium II has had a tradition of presenting at least one humourous issue per year.

Last year the medium II published a parody called The Toronto Scum, which was well-received.

It is hoped that the medium II revue will be established as the annual humour publication of the newspaper.

VARSITY BLUES

The medium II would like to congratulate the Varsity Blues on winning the Canadian Hockey Championship.

Abate approachable

By Betsy Powell

John Abate wants people to know that he is very approachable. If he wins the ECSU Presidency he plans to make ECSU more accessible to students. 'The Abate Team' campaign slogan captures the spirit of their philosophy: Students Working with Students.

Abate wants to ensure that he represents what the students' want by opening up the lines of communication ECSU and members with an 'open door' policy.

"ECSU is a corporation and has to be run as one, but ECSU also has to function as a "Students" union. I don't want to get out of touch with the student opinion. Let's face it; if you're elected you are there to represent the electorate opinion."

Predicting that people may question 'The Abate team's' ability to perform ECSU Board of Directors' duties because of their lack of experience, Abate responds "the people on our ticket have experience with people - which is just as important as experience in the business field. I would hope that those acclaimed could come through with the formalities."

'The Abate Team' approach centres around seeking new ways to get students more involved. "ECSU will still be run as a business, but on the Abate ticket, we're more concerned about giving students more chances to become involved."

Dave Mimms is sick and tired of hearing Erindale knocked as "just a place to go if you cannot get in downtown." He would like to bring his fresh ideas to the Academic Director's portfolio, and says that if he is elected he'll do everything he can to help bolster Erindale's academic reputation.

Vikhash Ambwani has a 'pet project' in mind if he's elected External Director. He wants to set up a committee made up of SAC Directors at Erindale to help solve SAC and ECSU's deteriorating relations.

I want to be a troubleshooter in SAC. I want to make sure that SAC lives up to their promises to suburban campuses. With the help of an investigative team, I want to bring SAC back to Erindale so that ECSU and SAC both recognize each other."

Running on John's ticket for Director Without Portfolio are Rosie Spadafora, Mike Tiveron, Phil Marsden and Steve Pellegrini.

Realistic Plans

By Betsy Powell

Gail MacDonald hopes that people will not assume that she or any of the members on her ticket want to "hold up trophies of the past" just to get elected.

Gail wants the Erindale electorate to know that "experience is not all the MacDonald ticket stands for. The experience we've gained in the past enables us to offer realistic and guided direction for the future."

Some MacDonald ticket plans for the future include "allocating club funds based on its role at Erindale, increased realization of the potential of the Meeting Place as a social and cultural centre, initiation of 'Erindale International', an opportunity to expose the multicultural nature of Erindale students and a publication of Academic Guidelines which would answer many of those difficult questions that students often ask." Gail feels that her experience working with students on all levels combined with "new and innovative ideas" offers Erindale students the best choice in the coming ECSU election.

Gail calls ECSU "an administration run for the purpose of students." However she asserts that "ECSU is not a glamorized social club. Only 30% of all ECSU activities are social, the other 70% is devoted to many other selient issues that have to be dealt with. ECSU has other business, like deciding if there are enough lights in the parking lot, or if additional anthropology courses need to be added or if student's should have to pay increased incidental fees. The social position has already been filled. I'm offering competent people who can fill the other positions."

MacDonald promises that her team would work to facilitate the needs of ECSU with a "realistic and logical approach." She says that she wants to ensure that "people are elected by what they can contribute to ECSU. After the election, popularity becomes irrelevant. It is ability which is essential." The MacDonald strategy anticipates the projected 1985 by-law revisions which re-define the role of DWP. "We want to assign the DWP's specific areas of duty. We want to provide back-ups which would in all ways be capable of filling in for say V.P. Finance if he or she were away."

The MacDonald ticket has 12 members in all, however 5 of those positions have already been acclaimed. Gail still wants the electorate to know that all of her team members were selected by an extensive selection process. "Each member on the MacDonald ticket was interviewed and all are capable to work on ECSU. We agreed on a direction and shared similar ideas as to how objectives should be implemented. We have a proper perspective on the limitations and potentials of ECSU. What we don't agree on—we talk about. We are united in spirit."

Seeking election as External Director, Tom Burkimsher wants to see SAC's low profile improved on campus through better communication. If elected he promises "to try and get more services from SAC."

Running for Academic Director on the MacDonald ticket is Arlena Hebert. A 3rd year commerce student, Arlena says that she has come to know all the issues as chairman of ECSU this year.

She promises to bring an overwhelming amount of enthusiasm and dedication to ECSU if she is elected, and she wants people to know that the Academic Portfolio is "really a big deal."

The Directors without Portfolio on the McDonald team are Jenny Guest, Mary Pan, Mark Deacon and Debbie Falconer.

Golding aiming at the clubs

By Betsy Powell

If Kevin Golding wins the upcoming ECSU Presidential election he vows to make Erindale Campus a more enjoyable place for students. Running on an independent ticket, Kevin feels that his dealings on this year's ECSU Board as a DWP have shown him what qualities a President would have to have in order to get things done.

"The President has to speak on the college's behalf. In order to get people to listen the President must speak clearly and have the ability to argue. He has to be able to sway others to his point of view."

Kevin sees ECSU as having two purposes. "Ecsu must look out for the student's best interest both academically and socially." He says that although students are here for the academics, they are also very concerned about their social lives.

"I want to help improve the social atmosphere at Erindale", he said, adding that he doesn't feel that ECSU has done much to encourage student involvement in anything outside of academic life. "All ECSU offers now is the Pub.

Club support from ECSU been minimal this year. The Pub was charging Clubs beer prices up 40% and certainly clubs can't afford to re-sell beer for a profit - that's hardly promoting club involvement. ECSU must try and get more input from students to find out where their interests lie. I hope to increase student involvement through their suggestions as to what kind of extra-curricular activities they'd support between ECSU and ECARA next year. "I'd like to see them both work together for the benefit of the students. ECSU and ECARA could work together to offer the student's wider choices of activities to participate in.

One thing Kevin promises to do if he wins is to remove CFRE from its present status. "They are in limbo, and CFRE is certainly not being used to its fullest extent. The MacGrath/ Green Report suggestions were very good." He says he would settle for no less than "promoting CFRE to the absolute limit. By attracting more listeners you attract more advertisers and in turn you have more funding for perhaps better equipment for the residences." If ECSU gives CFRE enough support, Kevin sees the possibility of CFRE getting an FM licence.

Government without a Cause

What happened to the days when student council elections were interesting? Issues, debates, new promises?

Has everyone lost interest in ECSU? It sure looks that way. Not even the candidates are excited. It is unusual to have acclamations to key positions such as VP Administration, VP Finance and Social Director.

If any progress is to be made at ECSU this year special attention must be paid to the presidential candidates. They are the ones we expect to provide general direction to Council as they struggle to represent what they perceive your interests to be.

John Abate, a third year Crime and Deviance student, is approaching ECSU totally inexperienced. He is enthusiastic and personable. He is committed to letting the students know what ECSU is and does. That's all.

Our question is what is the good of zeal without knowledge? It is entirely to Mr. Abate's disadvantage that he failed to find himself a Vice President of Finance and a Vice President of Administration. A serious President must be prepared to present to his electorate a detailed plan for the development of his organization. It is even more impressive if the President is able to attract competent senior colleagues. Mr. Abate managed to get an External Director, an Academic Director and four Directors without Portfolio. If he is elected he will have to depend heavily on the experience of the acclaimed VP Finance and VP Administration for the council to do anything for you. This is not leadership; it is an extremely unhealthy parasitic arrangement.

Kevin Golding should understand how ECSU works. He is Director without Portfolio this year. There is nothing wrong with a President choosing to run on his own. Kevin does have ideas for ECSU next year. However his plan is not sufficiently comprehensive for us to expect anything spectacular from his leadership.

Vote MacDonald

The MacDonald Team has presented the most appealing program for ECSU next year. Ms. MacDonald was successful in attracting a complete and competent ticket for these elections. Her Vice Presidents have proven their abilities on ECSU this year.

She has specific ideas on methods of motivation and leadership as well as clear objectives for ECSU. All the major areas of concern are covered—academic, social, financial, cultural, and athletic. Ms. MacDonald has a reputation as a conciliator. She is committed to coordinating the variety of talents on her ticket to yield the maximum returns for the students.

Ms. MacDonald's commitment to ECSU and its causes is clear from her involvement with the organization this year.

If MacDonald devoted the time and energy and succeeded in building a team and a program, we have faith in her ability to deliver. Even if you don't feel the way we do we urge you to vote MacDonald anyway. Her plans might not all be realized but she has worked hard enough on her program to deserve a chance. Vote MacDonald for ECSU.

Objectivity in Doubt

We are very disappointed about the lack of professionalism at medium II. A paper with your circulation should be responsible for presenting an unbiased view in the issues of the present day, allowing the readers to decide what they believe in. Editor's Note:

We apologize for the error in the story last week. Let me assure you that it was an error in composing and no deliberate attempt was made to obfuscate the fact that Mr. Abate was running for the Presidency. Had this been the case we might not have mentioned at all that there were in fact three people seeking that office. Again we apologize for the mistake but let me assure you that we are committed to professionalism and fairness in journalism.

Support MacDonald

We, the undersigned, wholeheartedly support Cail MacDonald and the MacDonald Team members, in their electoral quest for positions on the ECSU Council. The five of us have been acclaimed to office, but we still feel that the MacDonald Team is the best alternative for ECSU.

This group of people has been meeting and working together for over a month, formulating policy, discussing issues and meeting you, the students. As "acclaimed directors", we will not be speaking at the forum, nor are we allowed to financially contribute to the campaign. Furthermore, we have a responsibility to work with whoever may fill the remaining seven board positions. We urge you to consider three key factors: Experience, Initiative and Organization. ECSU is a very large corporation that requires twelve hard-working members to run it properly; the students deserve the best alternative. On March 27th and 28th, please lend your support to Cail MacDonald, Tom Burkimsher, Arlena Hebert, Jenny Guest, Mary Pan, Debbie Falconer and Mark Deacon.

MacDonald Team's Strength

For the following reasons I wish to endorse the MacDonald Team as ECSU candidates. In the past Cail MacDonald has been an important contributor to Residence Council and its committees. Within these organizations Frank MacCrath is invaluable and we have benefited from Mark Deacon's conscientious work and innovative ideas. As a Residence Don, Arlena Hebert has a proven record for practical, effective problem solving.

Based on the strengths of these individuals, surely the MacDonald Team are the people to be ECSU in 1984/85.

Hallett For Abate

I wish to clear up a misconception that the medium II has put forth in last week's newspaper: Cail MacDonald did not coordinate the ECSU by-law revisions. The credit for the by-law revisions should go to Kent Tubman, Kevin Colding, Andre Kern, Frank MacCrath, Scott Montgomery, Dave Hallett and the Council of 82-83 giving the major coordinating role.

The time had come when revisions had to go to Council and Miss MacDonald did not have any of the necessary revisions ready. Kent Tubman and Dave Hallett then initiated the revisions, presenting them to Council. Further discussions ensued with the above mentioned people who contributed their interests.

This type of "cover-up" for Miss MacDonald has happened too many times this year and with election time upon us I could not allow this misprint in the medium II to go unanswered.

Due to this and many other such instances this year I have been convinced that Miss MacDonald does not have the necessary qualities to be the President of the Erindale College Student Union.

Reviewing the candidates and their respective qualities I have decided to support John Abate for president and I hope that the voters of Erindale will give them their support.

Dave Hallett
V.P. Finance ECSU

No Continuity Vote

Over the past two years I have been in favour of any form of continuity that could be applied to the operations of ECSU.

Normally, at election time I would be asking you the voter to elect some continuity, but not this year!! This year we have 5 acclaimed directors, 3 of which are past members of Council. This is all the continuity that our Council needs. What we now require is "new blood" and "new ideas". We must insure that ECSU isn't blessed with so much continuity that it becomes stagnant.

It is because of this need for "new blood" that I support John Abate for ECSU President 84-85. John is familiar with all facets of student life on campus. With John's enthusiasm and the support from the 3 "oldies" of this year's Council, he will be an asset to ECSU.

In the elections vote John Abate for President, for the new blood on Council.

A. J. Kent Tubman

S.P.U.F.O. Enlightened

Being a distant relative of Percival Lowell, I felt I really had to reply to Rino Anastasio's feature length article on UFOs, a subject that has long troubled not just myself and the whole slew of people related to old Perce, but also those staunch, undaunted readers of North America's most popular weeklies.

An important point, I must first clarify is Percival's mistake in the translating of Giovanni Schiaparelli's word 'canali', actually meaning groove or channel, into 'canals'. What isn't widely known is the fact that Percy did not reach his decision alone. His decision was verified; indeed by a real Italian, namely Luigi Nonerudits, a recent immigrant to Boston from Venice, whose knowledge of English barely surpassed old Percival's smattering of Italian. However, Luigi made the best meatball sandwich in the whole Eastern United States and Luigi's hot sauce and convinced. It was Luigi's idea too that only intelligent life 'coulda built dose canals' (his words) reinforcing his point with the example of the people of Venice. In hindsight we wiser people realize this is not the safest ground on which to rest your laurels, but, hell, a meatball sandwich isn't a meatball sandwich unless it's Luigi's.

The enigma of UFOs is presented to us almost weekly by America's inquiring papers. I must say in all honesty, I was pretty confused trying to figure out if the alien base on earth is actually under the North Pole, the Amazon Basin or firmly implanted on or near the Continental shelf, where I'm told these beings often disguise themselves as Merpeople.

I was hoping the new movie Splash, by credited director and authority on North American culture, Ron Howard, could offer some insight into the dilemma. Then, this iconoclast of a man named Rino Anastasio comes out and shatters my illusions and doubtless those of the millions who indulge in your paper each week. He changed my whole concept of thought patterns, logic and speech and for for that, Rino, the disapprobation of my friends is reserved entirely for you. (The truth always hurts, so ignore the obscene phone calls.)

This dream-shatterer of a guy really researched this article and I am sure the repercussions will be felt throughout society. His attention to detail and use of examples astounds me, though the scientific jargon of the last few paragraphs is above me, it will no doubt be appreciated by the science students and professors.

It took me the better part of an evening to see through the statement about the Top Secret data no-one is supposed to know about, yet the papers report it. My first reaction was anger and sadness at having been taken, gradually it turned to happiness as I realized I was now clever and better still, a skeptic.

I was glad, too, Rino pointed out the photograph headlining his article was a fake and how, exactly, he had reproduced the image of a UFO. I mean I was all set to take that photo along to a meeting of S.P.U.F.O.M. (Spotters of UFOs in Mississauga). Instead, I will take this article and hopefully they will see the light and become clever. It will probable cause as much fuss as the time I took Robert Sabga's article on the non-existence of Christ into my local church.

Thanks Medium II for printing such wonderful informative features.

Still actively involved,
Bill Sutton

Erindale advances to finals

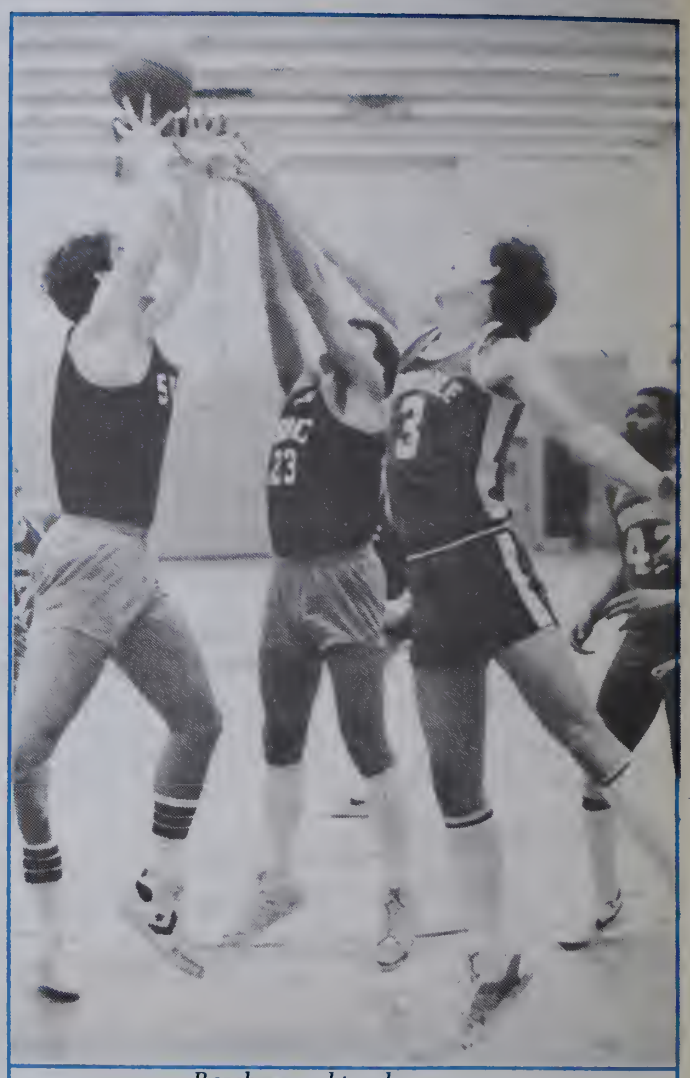
Our Warriors were once again victorious, defeating St. Mike's College (SMC) in a tense semi-final game played March 15. This being their second win against SMC, defeating them 75-72 on the 12th, they are now on their way to the playoff finals.

Though trailing throughout the first half, they played well defensively, thanks to the devoted help of Anthony Samuels who covered many of the backboard rebounds. With the halftime score at 43-36 for SMC, the best was yet to come.

The A-team's championship form emerged in the second half and once again trouble began to brew. SMC couldn't handle Erindale's guards and kept letting them get away with one-on-one breaks. This and a stronger display of disciplined defence led to SMC's eventual downfall. Valter Viola and Steve Beamish, St. Mike's top scorers, were held back to 5 and 14 points respectively; 19 point total, which is less than they score individually in normal games.

With 4:15 left in the game, Charles Singh finally tied it up with a beautiful bulls-eye shot from nearly centre court. In the last thirty seconds, Charles also put home layups on two breakaways, firmly planting their victory at 83-71. The top scorer for Erindale, who also scored most points in Monday's game, was Mike Drury with 26 points to credit.



Reach up and touch someone

On a personal note, this was the most exciting game I ever covered. The crowd, though filling only one third of the bleechers, was loaded with traditional Erindale spirit. (Not found in any store!).

It was a long time in coming but onTuesday March 13 the men's volleyball team brought home the championship.

In wrestling the final match from the Dents, Erindale did it the hard way. In the first game Erindale couldn't settle down and many of the points gained by Dents were on unforced errors. It was definitely a severe case of the butterflies. As the score read 13-3 for Dents, Eridale showed signs of settling down, as they began to take the play to Dents and forced them to work for the last few points.

With the momentum built up from the end of the first game, Erindale settled further into their game plan and swung the game around into their favour and demolished the Dents.

Coach Jaan Schaer had this to say about the first two games, "I thought it would be a repeat of last year (Erindale lost the finals to Meds.), but after the third this might be the year. The win came about by the players who replaced Chris Weissflog and Jon Koh, both out with pulled ligaments. This bench strength was provided by Lekic, Badwal and Kung."

Going into the third game, the team realised that this game would probably be the deciding factor in the outcome of the match. Erindale won this game quite handily. Asking Captain Andy Pilacinski how he felt at this time he replied, "Quite confident". It was during this third game that the setters, Will Kastelic and Rick Scott, began to run X's and tandems, completely baffling the Dents' blockers, who as time went on, grew less and less confident.

On the other hand, Erindale's blockers, Rob Gerritson, Roger Badwal, Zlatko Lekic and Andy Pilacinski gained confidence and were continuously 'roofing' many of the spikes attempted Dents.

To give credit to the Dents they never gave up and gave their best shot at recovery during the fourth game. The first half of this consisted of mainly a see-sawing match in which neither team took any substantial lead, always within a point or two of the other. However, around the midway mark some excellent serving by Kastelic and Pilacinski and some timely defensive blocking by Scott and Gerritson, forced Dents into scrambling for the ball and making crucial errors. Erindale took this game, and pandemonium broke loose on the Erindale bench.

Asking Coach Schaer how he felt, he muttered something about getting gray hairs and "been waiting sixteen years for this since I once played for Erindale."

Captain Pilacinski felt "really happy and relieved, it was about time after so long and being so close in previous years." The team would like to thank all the supporters that turned out and cheered them on to victory. A special thanks from the team to the Coach Jaan Schaer for putting the time and effort over the whole season and Bryan Nyoff for managing the team.

Last Thursday night was 'Neil McKeown Night' at Varsity Arena, as McKeown (5) scored a hat trick.

McKeown scores three

By Brian Vickers

In a sudden-death quarter-final, there's no tomorrow, no second chance. It doesn't matter what's happened throughout the season; it all boils down to one game. You can't afford to come out flat, you've got to have a good game.

Last Thursday night at Varsity Arena, the men's ice hockey team, the Warriors, showed that they are well in the running for their third consecutive hockey championship. The Warriors defeated 8th seed University College (U.C.), 5-3, in the sudden-death quarter-final.

In the Warriors' final regular season game, they narrowly escaped defeat against this same U.C. team. But last Thursday night, the Warriors had everything under control.

Erindale came out in the first period throwing their weight around. They were forechecking U.C. very well.

At about the three minute mark of the first period, Erindale opened the scoring on a goal by Greg Gwynne from John Lenchak.

The Warriors weren't about to let up. Four minutes later, Erindale took a 2-0 lead on a goal by Neil McKeown, with an assist going to Andy Mackin. The U.C. goaltender never saw the shot, as McKeown blasted a slapshot from the blueline.

As the first period came to a close, Erindale was assessed two penalties, one after the other. The first penalty went to Chris Hundt for holding and the second to Dan Barret for highsticking. On both U.C. powerplays, Erindale goalie, Pete Smith, was very sharp, keeping U.C. off the scoreboard.

At the 8:20 mark of the second period, U.C. broke the ice, scoring their first goal. Erindale goalie, Pete Smith, was flat out after making the initial save, and the U.C. player backhanded the puck over Smith's outstretched glove.

Erindale came right back two minutes later, on a goal by Neil McKeown, his second of the night from Chris Hundt and Greg Gwynne.

This evening proved to be "Neil McKeown Night" at Varsity Arena. McKeown scored his third goal at 14:15 of the second period, with an assist going to Dan Barret.

In the third and final period, U.C. was a lot more aggressive, really taking the play to Erindale. This aggressiveness wasn't going to stop Erindale, as newcomer Tim Stack scored with Barret assisting (again).

Tim Stack (23)scores against U.C.

The goal came on a rebound after an initial slapshot by 'Captain Dan.'

This didn't bother U.C. as they came right back less than a minute later, to pull within three goals of Erindale. U.C. scored again at 14:52, but it wouldn't be enough, as U.C. was defeated by Erindale, 5-3.

For most of the third period the Warriors were on the defensive due to an unusual amount of penalties being called against Erindale. A total of 20 minutes were called against Erindale in the third period, including a ten minute misconduct to Chris Hundt, who was upset over the penalties being called.

"You guys haven't done a thing right all season. Why not get your act together? You guys get paid for this?" yelled Hundt from the penalty box.

The whole team played very well, showing they really wanted the victory. Special mention goes to NeilMcKeown, Chris Hundt, Pete Smith and Dan Barret, who were outstanding for Erindale.

The Warriors now face Scarborough in a best two-out-of-three semi-final. Games are on Sunday at 7 pm, Tuesday at 8 pm and Wednesday at 10 pm, if necessary.

Correction: OET Snakes vs. Scum in final

By "Stump" Davis

Semifinals

At the risk of hyperbole, game 3 of the Scum vs. Rum Runners semi-final series was one of the most exciting in Erindale history. It was a cleanly played and well executed contest.

Rob Snoyer put the Rum Runners on the board to break the opening deadlock. Scum responded with goals by Pepino Lio and Barry Brdar. Thus the half ended with Scum enjoying a 2-1 lead.

It looked like more as Brdar scored again soon into the second half. Things looked grim for the Runners, but they didn't get to be two-time champions by quitting. Wayne Onishi started the Runners rally with a blast to the top left corner. Tim Stack also scored in short order to tie the game at 3. Brdar completed his natural hat trick to put Scum in front 4-3.

The Rum Runners' Willie Kastelic tied it up again on a pretty goal. However, in the dying moments of regulation time, Eka Liem scored for Scum to clinch a 5-4 victory. Scum withstood the awesome Rum Runners' pressure of the last minute to triumph.

The key to this game may well have been a steady performance by Scum goalie, Claude Limberger, who was shaky in game 2. Scum advances to the finals. The Rum Runners enjoyed another good season but, for the champs, all good things must come to an end.

Finals

Considering the upcoming finals between the OET Snakes and Scum, a sense of perspective is necessary. These are two fine veteran hockey clubs. Both have valuable playoff experience. In fact over the last 3 years only 3 teams have reached the finals: the Rum Runners, Scum, and the OET Snakes (each twice).

A comparative analysis of the two teams might enhance the appreciation of this showdown.

Scum has always been known more for their defence rather than their offensive punch. This year, with the emergence of scoring phenom, Barry Brdar, Scum's offence is also getting recognition. The capable and steady forward corps includes Jerry Nazarowicz, Walter Grob, Walter Tessigni, and Mike Manella. Scum has achieved, this season, the scoring touch necessary to be a contender for the Championship.

The OET Snakes' mindset is and always has been offense-oriented. Scoring sensation, Gary Lipinski, and linemate Paul Ditommaso, paced the Snakes inspired offense. Good second and third strike capabilities are offered by this balanced lineup: Ed Tos, John Jenkins, Tony DiIoia and James Wilson. The Snakes' offense helped give the team the best plus/minus figure in the league (plus 81).

Scum subscribes to the European philosophy defensively: this is to say the defence plays an active in the offensive game plan. Defensive rushes coupled with the usual tough Scum defence make this bunch impressive. The veteran blueliners include Johnny Wong, John Hazineh, Pepino Lio, Eka Liem and Paul Lasiuk. The Scum defence often stifles opposing offenses.

The Snakes can boast of one of the stingiest defences in the league. Defensively, they play the body and stick well, while leaving the scoring to the forwards. This aggressive defence plays well as a unit. The capable defenders include Andy Koo, Dave Adams, Mark Lowry Hardy Braschel, Scott Gillard, Rob Martino and Gord Kempster. Veterans, Dave Burmudzija (shoulder) and Steve Davis (knee), have been lost for the season to injury.

Scum's Claude Limberger, the former Skull, plays well behind a solid defence. He has proven he can win in clutch situations. Consistency may be a problem.

The Snakes' Jeff Hoppen is a composed veteran goalie. He has been consistently sharp all season and this accounts for his league best 2.10 goals against average.

There are three important keys to this series which will have an important impact on the result. Firstly, Scum must continue to execute their excellent passing game. They must also get consistent goaltending. The OET Snakes must keep their offense in high gear and call upon the defence to check Scum's goal scoring threat.

Look for a close and intense series. It might be lower scoring than expected. Finally, bases on their final season 5-1 victory over Scum, this reporter predicts a triumph for the OET Snakes in an exciting series.

Engineers Stretch Over B-Team.

By Brian Vickers

Before the men's basketball semi-final series, the coach for the 'B' team, Bob Ryckman, warned that Erindale's offense wasn't the best, due to lack of height.

It's as if Coach Ryckman could see what was coming last Wednesday night. The 'B' team was knocked out of the playoffs, losing to the Engineers 150-135 in a two-game, total-points series. Erindale lost game 1 on Monday night 74-71, and game 2 on Wednesday night 76-64.

Coach Ryckman pointed out that the team applies a lot of power trap on defense which usually results in a low scoring game. Another advantage, Ryckman said, was that the 'B' team is made up of young players who still have the "legs" at the end of the game. All of these things combined had gotten Erindale to the semi-finals.

Against the Engineers all of these positive aspects were wasted. The Engineers had height and that is important (no kidding) in the game of basketball. The Engineers' tallest player was 6'7" and Erindale's tallest was 6'1". Although it's only six inches, it made a difference.

In game 1, Erindale took an early lead in the first half of 24-14, but the Engineers recovered, scoring on long passes and getting a lot of rebounds. The half ended 44-35, Engineers.

In the second half, Erindale continued to have their problems. There were a lot of missed chances and fouls. To make matters worse, Erindale was playing without reserve forward, Dave Connell, who had hurt his ankle.

The momentum see-sawed back and forth. With 3:02 left in the game, Erindale trailed 74-65. They tried to make a comeback but it wasn't enough, losing 74-71.

In game 2 last Wednesday night, the good news was Dave Connell's ankle was fine. The bad news was that the Engineers were using their height to their advantage.

In the first half there were a lot of giveaways and steals to the disadvantage of Erindale.

The most successful play for the Engineers was when they would bring the ball up court, they hit a guy in the middle with a quick pass. Due to this, the trap was ineffective and this meant trouble for Erindale.

Towards the end of the half, Erindale played some aggressive defense. As a result, they kept the score close. At the half, the score was 31-30 in favour of Erindale.

In the second half, Erindale had its problems. They were shooting a lot from outside the key and missing. Most importantly, they weren't getting any rebounds.

As the game wound down, Erindale played some agressive defense, but it was all in desperation as the Engineers defeated Erindale 76-64.

On the bright side, Bill Fitzpatrick and Tien Vu led the team in scoring in game 2 with 24 and 12 points respectively.

Looking back on the playoffs, the 'B' team has good reason to hold their heads high. Going into the playoffs, Erindale was ranked 8th seed. The Warriors pulled two upsets and by the time they reached the semi-finals, they were the only team left in their division who had survived.

The 'B' team can be proud that they beat two other top seeds and ended up being the best team in their division.

Hustlers are champs

By F. Hewitt

The Erindale College women's hockey team successfully defended their Inter-faculty championship by sweeping aside P.H.E. two games to none in the best of three final.

The first game was held on Monday March 12 at 7:30 am. This unusual late start was due to the Soviet Broadcasting Co-operative (SBC) televising of the game live during prime time in the Soviet Union.

Erindale jumped into an early lead on a goal by Amy McNulty, on a beautiful rush. Beth Smith put Erindale up by 2 before the first period was over. In the second, Jill ten Cate gave the Hustlers a three goal lead when she put the puck into an open net after being set up by Janine Burigana who deeked around the defense and pulled the goalie to one side and then slid the puck over to ten Cate who had no trouble putting it in the net.

P.H.E. staged a minor comeback when the Erindale team decided to spot them two goals. However, Janine Burigana again rose to the occasion and scored two goals to put the game away and give Erindale a one game lead in the series.

The second game took place on Wednesday March 16 before a standing room only crowd at Varsity Arena.

P.H.E. took an early lead in this game but Erindale stormed back with a goal by Beth Smith. The Hustlers grabbed a 2-1 lead when Sue Ormesher rushed up the ice and passed to Donna Mc Pherson who put a low drive in the corner of the net.

With approximately five minutes left in the game P.H.E. tied the score and it looked like overtime would be needed to decide the winner. However, with just 10 seconds left in the third period Danielle Hurst let go a blast from her point position which was skilfully deflected into the top corner of the net to give Erindale a 3-2 win and the championship.

Head coach Terry Lalach said after the game that he had confidence in his team and that the outcome was never in doubt. Both coaches would like to thank the girls for their spirited play throughout the season.

Many of the women have various commitments in the off season. Lynette Cairns, Anne Haldimand, Sandra Perkin, Jill ten Cate will be speaking on the banquet circuit this summer. Kris Godson, Susan Thomas, Danielle Hurst, Beth Oxley, and Shelley Zimmel will be running a hockey school in Parry Sound for the summer. Donna McPherson, Sue Ormesher, Janine Burigane, Maureen Looney, Beth Smith, and Amy McNutly will be taking it easy for a while before getting geared up for try outs for Canada's entry in this year's Canada Cup.

Volleyball Tales

By "Spike" Sett

The women's A volleyball team advanced to the finals of Division I by virtue of their victory over Innis College last Monday.

The match was a close one, going to the five game limit before Erindale defeated the stubborn Innis squad. Led by two tall spikers, the visitors were difficult to handle when their sets were good. Innis won the first 15-9, while Erindale came back to take the second game 15-10. The Hustlers' front row used their versatility to exploit Innis' aggressiveness at the net, to tip the ball over the blocks, to uncovered spots.

Innis adjusted well in the third game, taking advantage of an Erindale letdown when co-captain Karen Sweetin twisted her ankle and had to be helped from the floor. The visitors blew the Hustlers out 15-5 to take the lead two games to one. Only one game away from losing their first match in two years, the ladies in green got a big lift when Sweetin returned to start the fourth game.

With great vocal support from the bench and from many members of the men's volleyball team in the stands, the Hustlers came out strong to take the fourth game 15-9, tying the match. By now the Erindale strategy of sending the ball to the off-side from the big Innis spiker was paying off, as the visitors' setter was forced to either give a poor set to the power hitter, or give a good set to the weak-side hitter. Erindale's digging skills came into play at this point as Ana Ludvik, in particular, dug up many loose balls in the back court.

Innis sagged noticeably after the fourth game, and the letdown was big factor in the fifth and deciding game. Erindale came out strong, with Carolyn Kroeber putting four quick points on the board with her serving. A couple of well placed spikes by Vida Vitkunas helped to finish the job as the Hustlers took the game 15-8 and the match 3 to 2. The team showed real determination in coming back when they were down, the true mark of champions. Credit must also given to Innis for their tough performance, marking them as a team of the future.

Erindale now faces the winner of the other semi-final matchup between Scarborough and the PHE Jockettes. The final will be on Thursday, March 22 here at Erindale. The time has yet to be determined, so be sure and check at the athletic office on Thursday morning before you come out to see what promises to be an exciting championship match. Vocal fan support gives the team a big lift, so help them to the title.

Floor hockey : final tribulation underway

By Diana Dawson

The semi-finals of the Women's Floor Hockey League got under way last week, pitting the Midnight Ramblers against the Drivers in game one and the Stray Cats against the Magic Shadows in game two.

In the first game of semi-final action, the second place Ramblers were up against the third place Drivers. Although the Ramblers did their best to score, they were no match for the Drivers. They were continually pounded by the Drivers' manoeuvring ability, passing, and Mandy Clayton. Clayton, who scored 10 of the total 13 goals for the Drivers, was continuously in and around the Rambler net, scoring one goal right after another. Calyton's teammate, Liz Baerg, not only scored 2 goals for her own team, but assisted the Ramblers by scoring the remaining 3 goals for the Ramblers, however it was not quite enough to beat the Drivers. With a final score of 13-4, the Drivers advance to the final round of play.

Also advancing to the finals are last year's champs, the Stray Cats. The Cats defeated the Magic Shadows in the second game of the semi-finals. They had the Magic Shadows on the go all the time due to their continuous passing and checking. And at the end of the first half, the Cats managed to keep their opponent from scoring a single goal. However, in the second half, the Shadows became more aggressive and Beth Oxley captured the only goal for her team.

So with a final score of 9-1, the Stray Cats move on to play against the Drivers in the playoff finals, where the best two out of three games wins the championship.

Bad for the System

No, no. Get your minds out the gutter! These two pictures are not a set of 'before and after' photographs. But I could understand you assuming that - however! On with identifications.....

Left: Susan Sarandon, Wil Wheaton, and Richard Dreyfuss are flying to Alpha Centuri. Wil Wheaton is the guy in middle with a beard. Are you sure these are the right photographs?

Far left: Richard Dreyfuss is Indian wrestling with Susan Sarandon. Little does Dreyfuss suspect, but Saradon's mother was a sumo wrestler.

By Ann McEachern

Take one mad-hatter inventor, compassionate school security guard, struggling closet writer. Add a persistent court stenographer, concerned mother of one. Make her 11 year old son a match-maker and what do you get? A movie called The Buddy System.

Joe Dennis (Richard Dreyfuss) is our indecisive career man who becomes the target for a plot to get him and Emily Price (Susan Sarandon) together. At the opening of the movie, we see Joe wake up in a frenzy and put butter in the toaster on the bread. Is this man sane? Is this movie sane? Then we see Emily wake up in a more reserved way, shouting at her son, Timmy; and Timmy: there's an interesting youngster.

Timmy thinks that if he wears green on Thursdays it means he's a fag. He says that at school, security guards are 'noon goons.'. And, according to him, his mother and Joe are destined to be together.

This movie presents a worn-to-death story, that of a single mother with an illegitimate child who wants desperately to have father, no matter what. It's the stuff of made-for-television movies, you know, the ones on Monday nights on CBS and ABC. The story is good but to me is not suitable for the big screen.

The movie, on a simple level, is a comedy of errors. Emily makes the mistake of living at her mother's house when what she really wants is a place of her own. Joe makes the mistake of moving into a much too expensive apartment with Carrie (Nancy Allen), his girlfriend, and his frustrations are compounded when the reality of his failing automatic dogwash (his newest invention) doesn't sell. This forces him to realize the practicality of selling his patent in order that he might be able to keep up payments on the rent and other assorted bills.

On a higher level, this movie delves into the buddy system between Emily and Tim. Since they're all they've got, they look out for each other; they have to fight harder for one another.

The Buddy System is a look into the reality of love. The relationship of mother and son is used to explain how love isn't a trick; it is something that just happens. tim's frustrations regarding the loneliness he feels without a father is exemplified when he asks his mother: "Why can't you make anybody love love?" Now this is real insight, form an insipid kid.

The movie is honest and entertaining; my only criticism is that of the adaptability of the story to the big screen. It doesn't work as well as I'm sure the producers and director had hoped. Susan Sarandon is believable as the mother who finally makes up her mind about what she wants out of life. Richard Dreyfuss is miscast; he does much better in serious roles (as in Who's Life is it Anyway?). Jean Stapleton does a nice job as the guilt-ridden mother of Emily who continuously ignores her daughter.

The Buddy System, on the whole is good. It has blended into it funny moments and serious moments; it does become dry and flat in the middly. The movie has point to be made but due to its familiarity already seen on T.V., it fails to grasp the attention of this viewer.

Bad Field Day

By Rino Anastasio

Not much can be said for this album because not much is on it. Just two different songs are introduced on this debut LP of The Colour Field. On side two we have The Colour Field and Sorry. And on the whole of side one, we have an extended remix version of The Colour Field; barely a minute longer than its original and barely extending halfway across the record. The remix version is hardly any different from the side two version of the song. And then there is the irritating honking sound near the beginning of The Colour Field which sounds like the mating call of a pack rat in rigor mortis.(This song is great for torturing deaf grandmothers.) What I don't understand is why this album wasn't released as a ten-inch EP

Anyway, even with the limited selection the album presents, Sorry does stand out as an enjoyably mellow tune. But I would never recommend buying the album. To be ripped-off the full price of an LP just for one song would not start this group's career on anyone's like list. Wait until the song comes to the radio (if it ever does).

The album doesn't even give any information as to where it was recorded, its producer or even reveal the names of the three band members. Well ,at least these three have some brains ;I wouldn't want to be caught responsible for this sad display of irresponsibility in the recording industry.

So on a final note, I'd like to say to the unknown trio "go home or go find yourselves some jobs. You've already wasted enough precious vinyl."

Waiting on and on ...

By Joseph Kellar

Everyday we have appointments to keep,We interact with superiors and subordinates.We lose things.We discover things.That is life. That is Waiting for Godot.

An excellent production of Samuel Bekett'sWaiting for Godot is now playing at Toronto Free Theatre. The comedy is highlighted and the result is a very funny and en joyable show.

Vladmir (Neil Munro) and Estragon (Saul Rubinek) valiantly try to pass the time as they wait for Mr. Godot to come with some kind of business prospect. While they wait, they meet Pozzo (Donald Davis) and Lucky (Eric Peterson). They ,too,help pass the time,but the question remains: Will Godot ever come?

Saul Rubinek switches back and forth from giving whiny complaints to dead-pan retorts. Munro concentrates his energies into deciphering the questions that plague him. Davis is obnoxious and so self-centered that he is almost oblivious to everyone else.Peterson is the reluctant slave with defiance in his eyes. All four men are exaggerations of aspects of everyone's personality. They are clowns who endear themselves to us (whether we want to admit it or not). They are part of us.

The stage is raised to give the impression of a mound. Most of the action takes place on the plateau. The mound slopes downstage to form a ditch. In a sense the audience is in the ditch, looking up to the characters for guidance. Their advice is to wait.

By Brian Vickers

When the Liberals choose a successor to Prime Minister Trudeau at their June convention, they won't be choosing a new leader, they'll be electing a "trustee in bankruptcy", according to Progressive Conservative Leader, Brian Mulroney, who was at the Ontario Institute For Studies In Education (OISE) auditorium last Wednesday. .

Mulroney made this statement at what was billed a public forum. The theme of the afternoon was "Let's Talk The Future." Mulroney never seemed to get around to talking about the future. Instead, he discussed such things bilingualism in Manitoba and the government's handling of Canadair.

Mulroney was much more relaxed when he was criticizing the Liberal government's inadequacies. He repeatedly threw out one-liners to the 600 students in the auditorium.

"In the last election, the Prime Minister said 'vote for me and I'll quit.' Well I did and he didn't! joked Mulroney.

What was billed as a question-and-answer period ended up sounding like an election campaign speech. He spoke for close to an hour, leaving little time for questions. As it turned out, there was time for only six questions, of which the first three were from loyal U of T PC's.

It was unfortunate there wasn't more time for questions but this curtailing was planned ahead of time.

Mulroney's visit, while being his first at the U of T campus, was his first confrontation with students in a question-answer situation, since becoming leader. The only other time he had encountered university students was in September of 1983, at his alma mater, St. Francis Xavier, which aides described as a 'love-in'.

Before the question period, Mulroney's aides were cautious and a little uneasy, wondering how he would handle himself under a barrage of questions. Afterwards, they were pleased. He handled the questions pretty well but it was hardly a barrage. The jury is still deliberating.

On emore issue to go. Can we make it? Sure we can. With our memorable (for more reasons than one) lampoon issue coming up and our final bash next Sunday (remember to dress up like your favorite T.V. journalist (e.g. Ted Baxter Mr. Grant (taken) Mr. Carlson etc.) it should be more than unforgettable. Momma Meehan may even cater!

Anywy thanks to Trish (let's keep it growing. The odds are with us.) Brian (we just love the first medium II collector's item jacket and the front page pic.) Peter (so I guess you won't make a living at the typesetter after all, eh) Vikki (so sweet of you not to wake us) Rino (not as quiety as we thought,eh) Carol (think Steve would mind if I asked you out on that two week long Forum?) Ann (ah, all those smiles) Betsy (see how much power there is in politics) Wilson (you sure know how to attract letters) Adjoa (one day it will happen and I wont be able to do anything about it) Marilyn Please bring your accordion or oboe or guitar or something that makes music next week)....
